Clubs, Stones and Knives Used With Fatal Effect.

TWO MEN KILLED AND TWO MORTALLY INJURED.

Midnight Housebreakers Shoot a Chicago Man—Big Haul Made by Burglars in an English Baronial Mansion—Tax Collector Shot and Robbed in Alabama—Crime News.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 19.—In a fight which took place between a gang of laborers at Hog Run, near Walton, Ky., on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, Saturday morning, two men were killed and two more are dying of their injuries. The trouble originated with four colored men—William Jackson, William Grimes, Dudley Warner and an unknown, who answered to the nickname of "Grimy." Several days ago a pay car passed the place and all of them were paid their wages. They celebrated the event by getting on a spree which, lasting for three days, culminated in the tragedy.

On Saturday night, "Grimy," who was a comparative stranger, accused Jackson of having stolen some money from him. Jackson denied the charge and called "Grimy" a thief. The two men began to fight, and drawing a razor, Jackson cut "Grimy" across the face. The other two men took a hand, and for an hour clubs, knives and stones were used. The noise of the conflict attracted other laborers who joined in the battle. Distress signals were sent to Zion Station, but no one in that village cared to undertake the quelling of the murderous mob, which continued to riot until early morning. Then an ominous silence took the place of oaths, yells and blows.

Early Saturday morning a posse of workmen at the tunnel started in the direction of the creek, where the mob had last been heard. After a tramp of nearly a mile toward the south they came upon a spectacle that stained the blood in their veins. Lying in a ravine in the bottom of the valley, Jackson was dead. The other two men were being cared for, for they are cut to the bone and their lives are despaired of. The quadruple tragedy is a series of crimes in that section of the country, which is about thirty miles from this city. There is intense excitement about the scene of the murders.

RICH HAUL BY BURGLARS.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Burglars have made a rich haul of jewels from Leithen Castle, near Edinburgh, the seat of Sir James Leslie, Baronet. Lady Miles had left jewels to the value of $8,000 in a safe in her bedroom unlocked. While the family were dining, yesterday, robbers entered the house unobserved and carried off two rifles and quantity of ammunition. Two deputy sheriffs with warrants were sent to arrest the boy, but he interceded them, covered them with his rifle and forced them to lay down their arms, turned them over to the police and drove them home. Last week he held up two men and robbed them of their watches and money. Several cabins have also been robbed and damaged. The police are investigating the case.

A systematic effort will be made by the officers to capture the full-blooded outlaws.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—It is stated that the amount that Edward P. Chamberlain, the missing executor of the estate of John W. George, is accused of misappropriating is $100,000, which has been issued, charges Chamberlain with misappropriating $10,000 in Northern Pacific and Montana first mortgage bonds. It was said that a further examination has shown it is said that $6,000 in cash is also unaccounted for.

CRIME NEWS.

A CHICAGOAN IMMORTALLY WOUNDED BY A BURGLAR.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19.—Frederick J. Austin of 864 Prairie avenue was mortally wounded at an early hour this morning, by two burglars. Mr. Austin was entering his house at that hour when he noticed the two men prowling around one of the side windows. He drew his revolver and fired at them as they wanted. One of the men fired a shot which did not hit Mr. Austin, and the latter returned the fire. Several shots were exchanged, one of which struck Mr. Austin in the stomach. He fell to the sidewalk, and while lying prostrate he emptied his revolver at the men. It is thought that he was wounded by a bullet from the gun.

A policeman heard the shooting and ran to the scene. Mr. Austin was found stretched in front of his house, with a bullet hole through a door wound in the abdomen. A doctor was called. He said that the wound would probably prove fatal. The police are investigating the case of the present. It was found that Mr. Austin's assailants had attempted to enter the house through a side window. Officers from the Staunton Avenue station started in pursuit of the murderous robbers.

FIRE BY HIGHBINDER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 18.—The four-story rookery in the most densely populated quarter of Chinatown was set on fire yesterday. The building was occupied as a lodging-house on the lower floor and as a lodgings on the upper stories. At the head of each stairway were heavy doors, self-locking and barred to delay police invasion. All the windows were covered by heavy wooden bars, as the first entry of fire sounded two Chinese were seen to break into the building and lock the heavy doors behind them. The inmates of the building are described as being mostly old men, and it is said that the door at the head of the staircase was locked. There was no escape for the people inside, and for a time it looked as though the building would burn to the ground. Finally two policemen saw a ladder and mounting to the second story, cut away the window frame, and took out the Chinese women and a baby. The damage done to the building was slight. It is thought that the fire was the work of highbinders, who took the match of avenging themselves on the inmates.

ROBBERY CHARGED.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19.—A. Haskins, one of the most prominent lawyers of Des Moines, Ia., and son of one of the wealthiest and most prominent men of that state, was locked up at the Harrison street station last night on charges of assault with intent to commit robbery. The charge is that he made a pass at a woman named Gordon who says he went to her room and pointing a revolver at her, demanded that she give him $100. He is charged with having been drunk when he broke in. Attorney Haskins was much chagrined to spend five hours in jail, and says it is a waste of time and identification, although the woman's purse was found in his pocket as he brushed past him in the crowd in order to avoid arrest.

A YOUNG HIGHWAYMAN.

POTTS TOWN, Pa., Dec. 19.—Albert Shadrack, aged 16, is terrorizing the ranchers near here, robbing them of their horses and driving them into a settler's cabin and carried off two rifles and quantity of ammunition. Two deputy sheriffs with warrants were sent to arrest the boy, but he interceded them, covered them with his rifle and forced them to lay down their arms, turned them over to the police and drove them home. Last week he held up two men and robbed them of their watches and money. Several cabins have also been robbed and damaged. The police are investigating the case.

The suit of Miss Esther Jacobs against Henry B. Sire, which was brought in the Superior Court some weeks ago to recover $60,000 from the defendant for breach of promise of marriage and consequent damages, was adjourned to Jan. 10. Mr. Sire is a rich young business man with a penchant for clubs and the races and having an office at 18 Broadway. His suit comes on a large sum of money between him and a musical voice and is a remarkably bright and handsome young lady. The defense is that he is engaged to another girl.

KILLED BY AN EX-CONVICT.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Dec. 19.—Chief of Police Nevitt received a message last night, notifying him of a brutal murder. Bert Tolbe became involved in a dispute with James Short over some trifling matter, which finally culminated in Tolbe's shooting his pistol and shooting Short, killing him almost instantly. When Lady Miles went back to her room after dinner she saw the safe wide open and armed robbers in the hall. It was believed that it is believed that there must have been some collusion in regard to the robbery, as it was not common knowledge that Lady Miles kept such a quantity of valuables in her safe.

EXPRESS ROBBER ARRESTED.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Dec. 19.—Thomas Murray, a par of Summers in the express robbery committed here last week and arrested in Chicago as he was leaving the train, was brought to Meridian Saturday by Pinkerton agents. Murray was found to be fully dressed on his arrival. He was arraigned to-day before a magistrate and pleaded guilty. He was remanded to jail in default of $8,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

OLD ORCHARD STATION BURNED.

MONROVIA, Ala., Dec. 17.—E. J. Armstrong, tax-collector of Butler County, Ala., was shot, maimed and robbed Saturday at Panhandle Creek Bridge. His body was found riddled with bullets. He was on a collecting tour, and had about $1,000 on his person. The people of the villages of the county are terribly shocked. It was found that Mr. Austin's assailants had attempted to enter the house through a side window. Officers from the Staunton Avenue station started in pursuit of the murderous robbers.

CHINESE TARTARY.

The Story of an American's Experience in Its Mines.

PERILS OF AN EXPEDITION IN FAMINE STRICKEN REGIONS.

A Journey of 1,600 Miles in Carts Over the Plains of the Yellow River Country—Sad Scenes Among the Starving Natives—Adventurous Americans.

New York, Dec. 19.—A man who looks like one who has acquired affluence at the expense of hardships and privation, has attracted the attention of the guests at Erie's Hotel for some days. His attire is that of a man of wealth, his manner that of one who has traveled much; his face is weather-beaten and his figure is that of an athlete—muscular, broad and straight as an arrow. The name of Charles Wisel, and he has been through all the appearance indicates. He has acquired his fortune by hard toil in wild, desolate land among uncivilized people, surrounded by fever and pestilence at times, and at others exposed to all the dangers that threaten the traveler in countries inhabited by unenlightened, barbarous people.

Four years ago Wisel, a practical miner, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and at the head of a party of four miners, set out for Chinese Tartary to develop and operate some silver and lead ore mines for the Chinese Government. These mines are 150 miles north of the ancient city of Jehol and forty miles north of the great wall of China.

The expedition was made under the authority and protection of Li Hung Chang, Viceroy of the Province of Chih, and the expenses were paid by the Chinese Government.

Despite all the protection the Chinese Government was able to throw around the party the expedition was accompanied by great danger. It proceeded through the Grand Canal and over the plains of the Yellow River, 700 miles long. The journey from Shantung and Thian-tan, a distance of 1,600 miles, was made in carts. Through famine stricken regions, among a wild, uncivilized people, many of them unfeared by the sight of the uniform of the Empress' soldiers, the party passed. Bandits and hostile tribes, the party of starvation or fever we encountered at the roadside.

In one instance, incident that occurred in the course of that journey, said Mr. Wisel to-day:

"We had entered a small village to spend the night, and as we passed through the gate we met an old woman with a baby clasped to her bosom and two other children crowding around her. In its direst poverty there was there. The bloodless face of the mother, the pinched faces and sunken eyes of the children, the scanty clothing of the woman, far from covering her body; the ragged, but clean dresses of the children all denoted poverty most dire. It was a scene that made the little children shivered as though in the grip of aague."

"We gave the woman more coins than her children could hold. Her eyes and the eyes of the children bespoke gratitude extremely touching. We left them, but saw them again the next day, as we passed through, but did seem impatient and then to see that we could not do something for the poor wretches who fell short our path. More than one of our party went hungry eat."

"The Government, concluded Mr. Wisel, "was too much effort to leave the sufferings of the people, out think it was due more to inability than indifference."

On the hardship accompanying his party he referred to his companions.

Two of them, Thomas Cosgrave, a Welshman, and John Quinn, an Irishman, contracted diseases which resulted in death. Both men, fortunately, were able to return to their homes before the end came.

The left January 1, 1889, one year before the United States consulate was attacked by the natives, and when he returned to his compatriots, he found our Consul and his wife dead.

"Such cases are not uncommon in Chinese Tartary," continued Mr. Wisel. "We were told that our Consul and his wife died of cholera, and that their bodies attracted the sight of suffering we might spend our lives in an attempt to alleviate it and then succumb to it. The most recent case I heard of did not seem at all disturbed by the harrowing scenes we passed through, but did seem impatient and then to see that we could not do something for the poor wretches who fell short our path. More than one of our party went hungry eat."

"The Government, concluded Mr. Wisel, "was too much effort to leave the sufferings of the people, out think it was due more to inability than indifference."

On the hardship accompanying his party he referred to his companions.

Two of them, Thomas Cosgrave, a Welshman, and John Quinn, an Irishman, contracted diseases which resulted in death. Both men, fortunately, were able to return to their homes before the end came.

The left January 1, 1889, one year before the United States consulate was attacked by the natives, and when he returned to his compatriots, he found our Consul and his wife dead.

"Such cases are not uncommon in Chinese Tartary," continued Mr. Wisel. "We were told that our Consul and his wife died of cholera, and that their bodies attracted the sight of suffering we might spend our lives in an attempt to alleviate it and then succumb to it. The most recent case I heard of did not seem at all disturbed by the harrowing scenes we passed through, but did seem impatient and then to see that we could not do something for the poor wretches who fell short our path. More than one of our party went hungry eat."

Johann Most Cowhided.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Emma Goldman, the friend of Bergmann, the Anarchist, who came to New York as he was about to begin his lecture to the German Anarchist groups in Odd Fellows Hall. Most, it is said, attacked Miss Goldman in his paper. The quarrel of long standing has assumed increased bitterness since the shooting of King, and many discountenanced the woman, together with a wing of the Anarchist organization, holds that Bergmann is a hero and a split has followed. The affair caused considerable excitement and is likely to develop further trouble.

Arrived in Chicago.

Nick Hines, colored, who is wanted here for the murder of Frank McDonald, also colored, at the foot of Morgan street, on May 7 last, was arrested yesterday in Chicago. Hines showed a revolver which he had bought from a gun dealer, and which he purchased it to kill someone. McDonald bared his breast and jestingly invited Hines to begin his killing. Hines shot him through the heart, and McDonald died the next day at the hospital.

A Slave Marriage Decision.

ALTON, Ill., Dec. 10.—Judge Burroughs has rendered a decision in a peculiar case. In 1857 a colored man named William Walker contracted a slave marriage with Eliza Allegre, another slave. Subsequently he left Missouri and moved to Alton, married Eliza, and she bore him two sons. He died a year or two ago, and his wife claimed his property. The court held that the first wife was the slave, and awarded the property to the second wife.

The first quarter

should be for a vial of Doctor
Pierce's Pleasant Pills. They're not doing its part. One of

does the right thing in the right way.

They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach, kidneys, lungs, heart, brain, etc., but mildly and gently. They persuade rather than force. One tiny, slight-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act a cathartic. They're the smallest, but the best. There's less to swallow, but more gets in. That's what it's taken. They're the original Little Liver Pill, and they've never been equalled. Sick and Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured. They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

HOW THEY QUIT.

What the Plungers Have Done During the Season.

PIERRE LORILLARD AND PITTSBURG PHIL HEAD THE LIST.

Four-fifths of the Men Who Bet Quit Losers—Chris Smith and Frank Shaw Out a Net Sum—The New Orleans Pugilistic Carnival in Doubtful Shape—General Sporting News.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 19.—The remnant of the dashing array of Western players who started their 1892 turf campaign at Memphis in April report but a few good winners.

They say that of all the Western betters there have come out with spoils: Boty, $50,000; Bob Rose, $30,000; H. Harris, $30,000; Joe Ultman, $30,000; Gus Bluhm, $30,000; Peter Wolf, $40,000, and adding to it in New Orleans: George Morgan, $30,000 in bets and $30,000 in book; W. E. Applegate, $35,000 and book still open; W. J. Brown, $30,000; W. J. Brown several thousand; Marcus Cartwright, $30,000; Abe Levy, $30,000; Argo, Stubbeleid, $40,000, and John F. Donovan, $40,000.

Chris Smith is $120,000 short and trying to get back a portion of it at Covington, and Frank Shaw is $80,000 loser at least on the year. An Eastern campaign at St. Croix and Picolo cost the St. Paul plunger $30,000. He lost $40,000 more at Chicago and $60,000 or so went in miscellaneous betting. Shaw started well, winning $10,000 or so at the St. Louis meeting.

The Eastern reports, as far as rank and file is concerned, run worse than those of the West. There are some 15,000 players who boldly began business at Gravesend. Four-fifths were losers and the tracks and transportation companies got more steady and larger profits than any other wing of turf operators. Pierre Lorillard is said to be $150,000 ahead of his betting operations, $35,000 of which was landed on Lamplighter's defeat of Kingston in the second special at Sheepshead. G. S. Smith (Pittsburg Phil) had a good year and finished $125,000 ahead. Parvensu won him $90,000 of this—$50,000 alone on Aug. 20 at Sheepshead Bay, when Phil burned up the ring. He won most of the other on King Cartwright.

Mike Dwyer is $100,000 ahead after betting three-quarters of a million. Half of Dwyer's profits came from his own and the rest from Father Bill Daly's horses. John McCafferty took $100,000 out of the Board of Control tracks' rings. Queenie Troutbridge, Helen Nichols, Hug Penny and Nero were his most profitable animals. Dr. Knapp of Oneck Stable fame won $50,000 in bets, mostly on Sir John, who was a $100,000 pony by Parvensu, $30,000 through the operations of the Entwistle faction.

Jack McDonald won $50,000 outside the books on Sheepshead and Queenie Troutbridge. So did Bill Daly on the turf antics of Iddo and fellow turf acrobats. Henry Clay is $100,000 ahead. John and Keno are the $40,000 strong on the present side of '92.

The $40,000 winning betting list is said to be made up of Green B. Morris, Billy Barrick, Ike Johnson, J. Laboid of Cincinnati and George Goddard.
